

STAT

[redacted]

STAT

STAT

You'll recall the [redacted] (spelling) matter - the second letter drawing our attention to non-acknowledgment of the criminal letter and our call to O/SI [redacted]. Well, on 13 November [redacted] 'phoned me saying that he had 'phoned the [redacted] representatives [redacted] telling them that he had placed the matter before the appropriate parties here. He said he is to talk again with said representatives come 20-XI and that he would keep me posted.

STAT

STAT

STAT

[redacted] seemed somewhat concerned about a possible security infraction on his part. That is, he apparently identified himself with the Agency during the 'phone call. I did not press him for details - he couldn't change whatever he said. Without knowing any more about it than that, my view is that it didn't seem necessary to allow any question of security to arise. As I believe you'll remember, my 'phone conversation with [redacted] went no farther on my part than to ask that action be taken to avoid a situation under which the company with which [redacted] had dealt would be without either an acknowledgement of their correspondence or the contacting of their representatives.

STAT

STAT

If we have anything in our file on this matter, the present (or its substance) should be added in note form; if we don't, then I think this should be prepared as a memorandum for ^{our} the files.

Gr

18-XI-52

Mr. Hedden:

You'll recall I mentioned this matter yesterday. The attached is the memo. I had drafted for [] My reason for sending it in to you is that you might care to speak with [] before he talks on next Monday with the [] representatives [] That is, he was not too well squared away on the subject and it might be helpful as, when he asked me, I was unable to give him any background.

Gr

STAT

STAT

STAT

STAT

STAT